Senate GOP Leader Aims At Compromise

Washington (AP) — Grave doubts about President Eisenhower's 1954 farm program were expressed at a conference of Republican senators yesterday as Sen. Knowland (R-Calif.), Senate GOP leader, spoke openly of a possible compromise.

With many Democrats and some Republicans ranged in opposition, the fate of the President's long-awaited farm plan appeared in serious jeopardy.

However, Knowland predicted Congress will enact most of Eisenhower's major recommendations.

The heaviest critical fire centered on the President's call for a gradual shift from the war-born system of mandatory high-level federal price supports for most major crops to a flexible program of high prices in time of scarcity and lower supports when surpluses pile up.

Some critics contend this would reduce financial help to farmers at the time they need it most—when prices are low.

Chairman Millikin (R-Colo.) said the first 1954 conference of all GOP senators, meeting behind closed doors, "did not feel happy about the general farm situation" in the light of Eisenhower's farm message to Congress Monday.

Millikin declined to elaborate, but it was learned that four Midwest Farm Belt senators—Young of North Dakota, McCarthy of Wisconsin, Thy of Minnesota and Jenner of Indiana—expressed misgivings about the flexible price proposal.

Young reportedly told the conference that the party must face what he termed the political facts of life, based on two points:

One—That a hard battle is already shaping up over next fall's elections for control of Congress.

Two—That many farmers, big farm organizations and a majority in Congress want continuation of the present rigid, high-level supports.

Young said that if a flexible price support bill is brought to the floor, as the administration has requested, amendments will be offered to extend the present 90 per cent of parity on basic crops.

T-H Proposal Strikes Snag

Washington (AP) — President Eisenhower's proposal for government conducted vote on strikes was in trouble in Congress yesterday even before the plan was fully clarified. There were some predictions that it never would pass.

Sen. Ives of New York, second ranking Republican on the Senate Labor Committee, expressed strong opposition to any such polls. His position could be decisive since Republicans hold only a single vote margin on the committee and a number of Democrats probably would line up with him.

Eisenhower's precise position remained in doubt. His message to Congress recommending Taft-Hartley law changes Monday asked that a worker be given a chance in a government-held ballot to say whether he wanted to face the pay loss incident to striking.

The President's message said nothing about whether such a poll should be held before or after a strike began. However, Chairman H. Alexander Smith (R-N.J.) of the Senate Labor Committee introduced legislation calling for polls after strikes are in progress.

Both the AFL and CIO came out with statements yesterday branding the Smith proposal as "a strike-breaking device."

A well-informed administration source, meanwhile, told the Associated Press that the strike poll plan was advanced by Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks at the suggestion of management groups.

This source said the White House actually did not like the idea very well, one reason being that elections would be costly in view of the fact there were more than 5,000 strikes in the country last year.

Three County FFA Boys Win Farm Show Prizes; Gould's Hens Place First

Three Monroe County FFA youths were among winners yesterday in vocational agriculture exhibits at the 37th annual Pennsylvania Farm Show in Harrisburg.

According to county vocational agriculture adviser Wilmer B. Frisbie, the youths are Carl Gould, Effort; Glenn Detrick, Stroudsburg, and Neal Murphy, Polk Township.

By telephone last night from Harrisburg, Frisbie reported that Gould had won first award for White Rock hens. Gould entered a group of three hens in the competition.

Detrick, who attends Stroudsburg High School, won the following awards, Frisbie said: Second for New Hampshire chickens; third for White Rock chickens; eighth award for White Leghorns. All three of these entries were in the vocational agriculture division.

In addition to these, however, Detrick won two fourth awards in the open category for White Rock and Leghorn cockerels. The "open" division contains entries from all persons interested in chicken breeding, including professional breeders, out-of-state chick raisers and firms.

Neal Murphy, Polk Township High School student, was awarded a third for an entry of potatoes in the vocational category, Frisbie said.

Two Stroudsburg High School organizations offered demonstrations yesterday afternoon at the Farm Show.

Stroudsburg Future Homemakers gave a demonstration of the proper use of jams made from frozen fruits without cooking. The Stroudsburg FFA chapter gave a demonstration of mechanical methods for spraying cattle with insecticide.

Repeal Of War Tax Rates Urged

Washington (AP) — A bill to repeal war tax rates on telephone messages, train and plane tickets, was introduced yesterday by Rep. Bender (R-Ohio).

Bender said the bill, if passed, would save taxpayers about 300 million dollars annually.

A wartime law increased taxes on long distance calls from 20 to 25 per cent and those on local calls from 10 to 15 per cent.

Bender's bill would restore the pre-war tax rates.

Year-Long Battle Against Cancer Climaxed As Plucky Actress Undergoes Leg Amputation

Hollywood, (AP) Actress Susan Ball, whose fight against cancer captured the nation's heart, yesterday underwent an operation for the removal of her right leg.

"The operation was successful," hospital attendants reported.

The amputation came after a year-long battle with cancer by the plucky actress. After apparently recovering from a knee tumor, she slipped in the kitchen of her home and broke the leg Nov. 28.

A bone graft operation was attempted, but Miss Ball did not respond. Because of the deterioration of the bone, an amputation was necessary. The operation was performed by Dr. Hy Engleman, who removed the leg between the knee and hip.

DeOtte Barn Burns With $30,000 Loss

Cherry Valley — Eighteen head of cattle, 1,200 four-week-old chicks, expensive farm machinery and tons of feed were destroyed near here early yesterday when flames leveled a barn and adjoining chicken house on the Donald deOtte farm causing an estimated $30,000 damages.

Aroused from his sleep about 3 a. m. by two teenagers who spotted the blaze from a home almost two miles away, deOtte summoned Blue Ridge Fire Co. of Saylorsburg but flames had enveloped most of the huge barn before firemen could go into action.

Firemen were credited with saving a small building about 30 feet from the barn, occupied by James Notestine, farm helper.

According to deOtte the youths, identified as Nancy Hartman and Jacob Klinge, saw the red glare in the sky from Miss Hartman's home and drove to the scene.

Arriving at the farm the youths awakened deOtte and Notestine by blowing the car horn, then rushed into the burning barn and saved four young hollers from destruction.

Firemen took water from a creek on the property and played streams of water on the burning structure, leaving the scene for their headquarters about 6:40. George Kitchner, fire chief, directed the fire-fighters.

With temperature near zero, firemen braved the frigid weather to confine the blaze and save the house in which Notestine resides.

Built in 1918, the barn was 54 by 54 feet and the adjoining chicken shelter, 80 by 42 feet, two stories high, was completed only recently.

deOtte said he believes the fire started from electrical wiring, since the section in which fuse boxes were located was about the first struck by flames.

The owner, who is a director of the Monroe County Soil Conservation District, said he inspected the barn and chicken house about 1:05 before retiring for the night. All was well then, he reported.

Thirteen cattle, including four calves, were taken from the burning frame building and out of danger. The chicks that perished were purchased only recently. Also destroyed were five pieces of farm machinery valued at $2,500, and hundreds of pounds of hay, oats, wheat and rye.

deOtte said the loss is covered by insurance.

Jet Rams Homes In Haze; Five Persons Killed

Long Beach, Calif., (AP) — Groping through haze while trying to land, an Air Force F86 Sabre jet fighter smashed into four houses in the Signal Hill oil district yesterday, killing the pilot and four other persons.

An elderly man collapsed and died, presumably of a heart attack, after watching the crash and the resulting explosion.

Dead are the pilot, Maj. Robert A. Blair of Omaha, Neb., attached to the 738th Ferry Command; Mrs. Shirley Roberts, 20, and her 18-month-old son, Douglas; Stephen Louis Shoup, the 11-year-old son of Maurice Shoup; Mrs. Shirley Ledbetter, 25, and Ernest Bailey, 7, the spectator.

Truth Or Consequences, N.M. (AP) — Eight persons were killed yesterday in a flaming auto-truck crash that sheared off half the abutments of a concrete bridge near here.

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Lafferty, Mr. and Mrs. Melvin H. Seaver and four children, ranging in age from six months to ten years, all of Elfrida, Ariz., died when their car collided with a beer truck, plunged through a bridge siding into a dry creek bed and burst into flames.

F. M. Danley of Albuquerque, driver of the beer truck suffered possible internal injuries and shock.

Blind Girl's Birthday Wish: Seeing-Eye Dog

By James B. Gaffney

It's not unusual for a person reaching voting age to want a canine companion. But when that person wants a seeing-eye dog, that's different.

Irene VanWhy is 21 today and her only wish: a well-trained dog to take the place of the sight she lost 19 years ago.

Victim of scarlet fever at the age of two, Irene suffered total blindness as the result of the illness.

At her home, 41 Brown St., East Stroudsburg, Miss Van Why beamed when she said there's nothing she'd like more than a seeing-eye dog. How much do they cost? Well, the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester VanWhy said, "My teacher told me once about $150."

Irene was referring to a Scranton resident, also blind, who comes here periodically to instruct her in the Braille system. While he hasn't appeared since before Thanksgiving Day, probably due to lack of transportation and weather interference, Irene affirms she's learned a great deal from his tutelage.

In July, 1952 Irene completed five years of preliminary training at the Royer Graves School for the Blind at Paoli, Pa. There, in a private school, she learned the rudiments of handicraft, making link belts, wallets and other items which she has sold locally but only in small amounts, not enough to give her any form of livelihood.

Six years ago the local Cane Camo presented Irene with a Braille wrist watch. It is one of her cherished possessions and a faithful timepiece to this girl in her groping for new life.

The VanWhy family currently is preparing to move to 87 N. Second St., Stroudsburg, and for Irene it will mean commencement of a challenge to find her way from room-to-room.

Mrs. Van Why explains that

BLIND SINCE she was two, Irene VanWhy counts the hours on her Braille wrist watch awaiting today and her 21st birthday. Her only wish: a seeing-eye dog.

Irene will only be at the new home two days when she'll have every entrance clearly imprinted in her mind, and from there on will take her steps without hesitation and without difficulty.

In addition to Irene, the Van Whys have six other children, three daughters and three sons.

198 Dead Or Missing In Avalanches

Vienna, Austria (AP) — Man-riding avalanches thundering down the Alpine slopes left a toll of 198 persons dead or missing last night in three nations.

Austrian government officials feared many more were trapped by the moving masses of snow, ice and boulders in the high Alps.

Thousands of tourists were stranded in ski resorts and an untold number of villages were cut off with dwindling food reserves. Austria concentrated on a great rescue mission involving hundreds of American, French and British soldiers.

Hardest hit was the Austrian village of Ilons, where it was estimated 55 of the 385 inhabitants were missing after two massive snow slides swept 23 houses into the Lutz River.

Avalanches in 12 places cut the Brenner Pass leading through the Alps from Italy to Austria. Officials said tons of snow, trees, and rocks slid into the highway and it would be blocked for another 24 hours.

Austria counted 51 dead, 121 missing; Switzerland 18 dead, 4 missing; Germany 4 dead.

Missing Witness To Surrender, Wife Tells Police

Detroit (AP) — Betty White, wife of Donald Ritchie, fugitive "key witness" in the Reuther shooting case, was arrested in Preston, Ont., last night and she told provincial police that Ritchie planned to surrender after contacting his attorney.

Sgt. Thomas Conaway of the Preston police quoted her as saying that she and Ritchie had headed back to Windsor, Ont., yesterday morning. She said she traveled by car and he by train.

The woman, described by police as Ritchie's common law wife, said she and Ritchie had been in Niagara Falls, Ont., since they left Chatham, Ont., last Friday.

Zero Weather Predicted As Snowstorm Moves Out To Sea

New York, (AP) — The Northeast's worst snowstorm in five years switched out to sea yesterday leaving the great coastal cities gasping in a deep freeze. Zero or below was the prospect.

At least 72 persons died from New England to Washington, D. C., during the storm—most of them of heart attacks. Auto accidents, sliding mishaps and a freak sea tragedy claimed others.

The storm, which struck Sunday, moved on early yesterday after dumping 10 to 15 inches of snow. High winds whip-lashed it into stubborn drifts.

New York, Philadelphia and Boston suffered the most, as transportation, business and traffic reeled beneath the buffeting.

New York was digging itself out from under 10 inches of snow, its municipal transportation back to near normal but private automobiles by the thousands were marooned in snowbanks along curbs.

Weatherman Ernest J. Christie gloomily prophesied: "We don't see any hopes for the temperature to get above freezing for the rest of the week."

The forecast for the Northeast was for readings of five degrees above to a several degrees below zero within 24 hours. Update New York and northern New England already were gripped in below zero weather.

The most severe cold of the season numbed the Upper Mississippi Valley. Plum Creek, a forest ranger station near International Falls, Minn., had a low of -43 degrees. International Falls had -39. Bemidji and Brainerd, Minn., had lows of -36.

The cold persisted during the day with Grantsburg, Wis., and Duluth and Minneapolis, Minn., reporting afternoon readings of -6 degrees.

Site Choice Deadlocks West, Russia

Berlin, (AP) — The Western Allies will make a fourth and possibly decisive attempt today to break the deadlock with the Russians on a site for the Big Four foreign ministers conference.

Failure of the U. S., British, French and Russian representatives to agree so far raised a serious threat to the parity due to start Jan. 25.

One high Western official said the secret talks to pick a site in four-power Berlin are "in a critical stage."

"If there is going to be a conference at all," this official said, "tomorrow's meeting must settle the matter of a meeting place one way or another."

Nevertheless, Allied diplomats here were not yet ready to concede that the big conference might flounder before it starts on such an issue.

And, despite the deadlock, there was no change in the plans of Secretary of State Dulles to come to Berlin Jan. 22 for preparatory talks with the British and French foreign ministers.

Dulles Bars Vast Sphere For Russia

New York (AP) — Secretary of State Dulles, speaking two weeks before the opening of the Berlin Big Four conference, last night rejected any deal for a "division of world power" with the Soviet Union.

In a speech before the Council on Foreign Relations, Dulles said this country is negotiating only "to advance the cause of human welfare." He said it will not join any "conspiracy against freedom" to gain an illusion of security by dividing the world "with those who suppress freedom."

Many diplomats believe the major aim of Soviet diplomacy now is to win acceptance by the Western powers of a vast Communist sphere in Eastern Europe and other areas.

In his address Dulles also:

One—Reported the Eisenhower administration has made a basic decision to rely upon "massive retaliatory power" for security of the United States and the free world.

Two—Said the administration's policy will provide more real security at less cost but will not guarantee against all future Communist successes. There may well be setbacks, Dulles said, but the important thing is to make them temporary and "local."

Three—Issued another call for European nations to set up the European Defense Community, under which French, German and other soldiers would form a united army. Dulles said Communist agents already are looking for ways to fan distrust between France and Germany into an international fire. Without EDG, he said, European security and future peace are in jeopardy.

Four—Found hope for eventually resolving Western troubles with Russia by persisting in policies that promote human freedom, because "there are limits to the power of any rulers indefinitely to suppress the human spirit."

Dulles' speech was a review of foreign and defense affairs during President Eisenhower's first year in office. He devoted part of it to the policy of depending on "massive retaliatory power" for defense of the free world.

This decision, he said, permits the United States to shape its own conduct for its own purposes, instead of making a series of emergency decisions in response to Soviet acts. He related to this basic decision the President's recent announcement of withdrawal of two divisions from Korea and development of a slower paced, longer range program for buildup of European defense.

Dulles declared that as a result of the past policy of emergency moves to meet Soviet threats, the United States and the Allies were carrying tax and financial burdens which "could not be continued for long without grave budgetary, economic and social consequences."

"But before military planning could be changed," Dulles said, "the President and his advisers, as represented by the National Security Council, had to make some basic policy decisions."

"This has been done. The basic decision was to depend primarily upon a great capacity to retaliate, instantly, by means and at places of their own choosing."

"Now the Department of Defense and the Joint Chiefs of Staff can shape our military establishment to fit what is our policy, instead of having to try to be ready to meet the enemy's many choices. That permits of a selection of military means instead of a multiplicity of means. As a result, it is now possible to get, and share, more basic security at less cost."

Strong 'Quake Rocks Cities In California

Bakersfield, Calif., (AP) — A strong earthquake rocked large sections of California yesterday, jarring cities more than 500 miles apart, snapping some power and telephone lines and cracking buildings. Cities from San Diego to Santa Barbara felt the shock.

There were no reports of injuries.

California Institute of Technology seismologists at Pasadena said the quake, lasting more than a minute, began at 6:34 p.m., EST, and was of 5.75 to 6.4 magnitude—a major quake. The University of California seismograph at Berkeley recorded the quake for 15 minutes.

Adm. Blandy Dies At 63: Led A-Tests

New York, (AP) — Retired Adm. William H. P. Blandy, 63, who led the first post-war atom bomb tests at Bikini in 1946, died yesterday.

He suffered a stroke Sunday and later was placed in an oxygen tent at St. Albans Naval Hospital.

Blandy retired in 1950 after three years as commander in chief of the Atlantic Fleet with headquarters at Norfolk.

A keen student of naval gunnery and a man with a deep love for the stately battleship, Blandy took a fleet to Bikini. There he watched the entire science of naval gunnery as he knew it vanish in the ugly mushroom of the atom cloud.

Blandy reported after these tests that radical redesign was needed throughout the Navy, with emphasis on speed and dispersal as defense against the A-bomb.

But he staunchly defended the Navy, as such, and called it a delusion to label the Navy obsolete on the basis of the tests.

Blandy had his first taste of naval action at Vera Cruz in 1914 during the Mexican border skirmishes. His career spanned two great wars in which the U. S. Navy reached a peak of power.

He won the Distinguished Service Medal three times, gaining two Gold Stars to his original DSM.

Another Inch Of Snow Falls In Region

Despite treacherous road conditions no accidents were reported in Monroe County yesterday.

State police theorized that the slow-down in the accident rate was because fewer people were driving and because more care was being taken by drivers.

Yesterday's chief weather development was a snow shower lasting about an hour during the afternoon.

Estimates of the fall were about one inch, added to Monday's seven inches.

At Mount Pocono weatherman Harry Greene said the fall started there at 1:30 and lasted until 3. Mountain residents were in for near-zero weather last night, he expected.

Mount Pocono Airport Manager H. John Davis reported fairly heavy winds churning the snow, and said the day's high reached only 18 degrees.

In Stroudsburg the snow shower measured about a half inch deep, said weatherman Pierre Lake-Lake's 8 a.m. temperature reading was 18 degrees.

Unofficially, the temperature dropped below that figure last night.

Philadelphia, (AP) — Residents of southeastern Pennsylvania braved bitter cold weather yesterday to dig themselves out from under the heaviest snowfall in seven years.

Sub-freezing temperatures, some approaching zero, were general over the whole state and the Weather Bureau predicted no respite before Friday.

In the Philadelphia area, residents crunched their way to and from work and school yesterday in piled-up snow hardened by the cold weather.

Public transportation facilities remained taxed to the limit by an extra influx of passengers who would be driving but for the snow-covered roads.

Main highways were open to all traffic and were handling it adequately. But secondary arteries and residential streets were rough going in many cases for any car without chains or snow tires.

One of the coldest spots in the state early yesterday was Selinsgrove in central Pennsylvania with a recording of 4 above zero.

Other lows: Philadelphia 20, Allentown 15, Scranton 15, Williamsport 9, Altoona 17, Philipsburg 15, Brookville 16 and Pittsburgh 15.

member of Congress introduces a special bill to permit an alien to remain in this country. The House Judiciary Committee decided yesterday to tighten up this rule, and to stop deportation only when the sponsoring congressman provides full information on the case.

Senator Williams Charges Democrats Coddled Robber

Washington, (AP) — Sen. Williams (R-De) charged yesterday that Treasury agents failed to prosecute for income tax evasion a deported bank robber who he said paid no taxes for seven years after sneaking back into the country.

He named the man as Frank (Sam) Cammarata of Youngstown, Ohio, and Detroit, Mich., and described the case in a Senate speech as a "disgusting example of gangster coddling."

Williams said also that three bills introduced in Congress blocked a second effort to deport Cammarata, who now is completing a 15-30 year term in a Michigan prison for a Detroit bank robbery.

"However, it should be noted that Frank Cammarata is in jail today in spite of and not as a result of any action taken by United States authorities," Williams said.

The Internal Revenue service declined to comment on the case.

The senator, long a one-man crusader against tax violators, listed the names and numbers of the bills which kept Cammarata in this country, but did not name their sponsors. A check of congressional records showed that Rep. Kirwan (D-Ohio) introduced two while the third was by former Sen. Myers (D-Pa.).

Kirwan said he acted as a "routine" favor to a constituent, but lost interest when he got a Justice Department report that Cammarata was an undesirable. He said he introduced the bills at the request of Cammarata's lawyer, who wanted more time to fight a charge that his client had violated parole from the Michigan prison. Kirwan said also that Myers introduced his bill at Kirwan's request.

Stockholders Of Area Banks Elect Directors At Annual Reorganizational Meetings

Shareholders of area banks elected directors yesterday and planned for reorganization meetings next week. Bangor's two banks held election of officers following directors' meetings.

First Stroudsburg National Bank named two additional directors at their afternoon session, giving the board a membership of 14. New directors are John Shinn, of Echo Lake, and James G. Kitchen II, of Pocono Lake.

The re-elected directors include: C. R. Bensinger, R. C. Cramer, Edward C. Hess, R. M. Houser, Dr. W. R. Levering, M. L. Serfass, Stewart S. Shafer, Edward E. Smith, F. L. Stackhouse, Ralph G. Turn, George W. Wendley and A. J. Zahriske. Election of officers is scheduled for 10 a. m. Tuesday.

East Stroudsburg National Bank re-elected nine directors. They are: T. J. Breitwieser, Theodore S. Metzgar, F. A. Wyckoff, W. M. Seguin, Charles Thompson, Fred W. Davis, G. N. Carpenter, C. L. Cramer and Jesse R. S. Flory. Reorganization will occur at 1:30 p. m. Monday.

Re-election of nine directors also occurred at Monroe County National Bank, East Stroudsburg. Directors are Frank D. Heller, Russell C. Hughes, Graydon D. Huffman, Arlington W. Williams, G. Willard Stettler, Dale H. Leary, Charles F. Grace, Merle E. Stevenson and Verner M. Reynolds. Election of officers will be held at 9:30 a. m. Monday.

Sixteen directors of Stroudsburg Security Trust Co. were elected yesterday. They were: Lloyd S. Altomero, Gerald M. Anderson, Kenneth W. Barthold, M. F. Crowe, Paul L. Edinger, Charles S. Flagler, J. Albert Groner, Howard L. Keiper, Frank S. Labar, Frank B. Michaels, Leon Pearsall, Walter S. Pacey, H. G. Sanborn Jr., C. D. Shult, Ralph C. Sieg and William A. Weber.

At First National Bank in Bangor, Asher G. Abel Sr. was re-elected president; J. Lawrence Davis and C. R. Horn, vice presidents; W. W. Horn, cashier; Asher G. Abel Jr., assistant cashier, and Davis, solicitor.

A new member was added to the board of directors with the election of Carl E. Houck, increasing the membership to 11. Directors re-

The Farm Show

The doors of the huge State Farm Show building were thrown open Monday for the annual exhibit which sends to Harrisburg hundreds of thousands of persons from our state and a vast number of visitors and exhibitors from all over the country.

The state is proud of the annual Farm Show which has grown over the year until today it is one of the outstanding events of its kind in the world. It is a tribute to the Farm Show officials, and particularly to Miles Horst, state agricultural secretary, that the show has expanded each year in scope and interest. The success of the venture is due largely to their combined efforts.

The exhibits gathered together under one roof provide something of interest for everyone, not excluding the urban dweller whose closest association with farming may be only a 100 square feet of vegetable and flower space in the back yard. The visitors will find poultry, animal, fruit, vegetable and grain exhibits. For the mechanically-minded, the machinery display for this year's show is of incredible size and interest.

The bountiful crops of our state will form the real backdrop for this excellent showing of manufactured products that have contributed so much to the increasing productivity of the soil. But while products will hold part of the stage, the central theme of this year's show is a tribute to the Rural Home in acknowledgment of that bulwark of American society as the center of security in our country.

In agriculture, in commerce and in industry, Pennsylvania is paramount, but it is especially in the field of farms and farm products that the State today demonstrates its essential place in the nation's economy.

The Negro's Progress

For many years the annual statistic which shamed Americans was the tabulation of lynchings by Tuskegee Institute, the noted Negro college in Alabama. The only consolation was that the total got smaller almost every year.

Now, for two years running, the figure has been zero. As a result, Tuskegee concludes that lynchings are no longer a measuring stick for race relations, and announces that it will base its annual reports hereafter on other material.

The Negro draws small comfort, however, from the mere fact that his life is in less danger from hoodlums. He had that assurance under slavery.

What is much more cheering to him is the real progress his race has made in only a few years, in the South as well as other regions, towards equality of opportunity.

"Jim Crow" is a great deal more than physical segregation, which would exist to a large degree even were there no laws on the subject. It is the denial to the Negro of the right to compete for jobs even when he is unquestionably qualified for them, and hence a harsh economic barrier to better housing, better education for his children, and the other good things of life he desires and which some people think can be given him simply by repealing certain laws.

When Tuskegee in future years tabulates the statistics in that important field of race relations, we hope it will find a continuation of the recent steady progress and eventually will find all such tabulations outdated too.

1954 BUSINESS INTERVIEW

We have followed our custom of an annual interview with The Man Who Built a Better Mousetrap in order to gain his views on what is ahead for business in 1954. He works at the prophecies of a slump. "There are just as many mice as ever. All the mousetrap makers have to do is to get out and hunt," he declared. "How is the pathway to the door as the new year gets under way?" we asked. "It was better to a new high in 1953, and I do not look for more than a five per cent drop in path-beating this year," he replied firmly. "The politicians will be disappointed if there is no depression, and some Democrats are talking as if they hoped the country would run out of mice."

"Suppose a mouse shortage should develop," we asked. "It would present no serious problem. I would just turn out a trap with one less hole."

"Thousands of economists held a meeting and the consensus seemed to be that some sort of recession was ahead," we said. "Some of them are Democrats. They all claim there will never be a proper balance between the mouse supply and the trap supply unless they are in power."

"Did you see what Leon Keyserling said?" "Leon, I think, is for more spending. He wants the government to step in and buy more mice, and supplement this through a big appropriation to buy mousetraps, thus stimulating both the mice and the people trapping them."

"We asked The Man Who Built a Better Mousetrap if he saw any need of the government providing cushions in case of a slump. 'You know what mice do if they get into cushions,' he said."

"Do you think the mousetrap supply has caught up with the demand?" we asked. "With all those new homes being built there will be more, and more mice and more and more people beating paths to the door of a better mousetrap builder," he said.

"Is it your opinion that your business is cyclical?" "No. There may be one year when mice are smarter and harder to trap than another year, but cycles have nothing to do with it. It all depends on the cheese."

"What about salesmanship?"

"That's the key to everything," he snapped. "People have been beating paths to my door in such numbers that my salesmen have lost initiative. We had had an era of prosperity when people seeking a new mousetrap had to get on a waiting list. From now on the salesmen will have to go after business. I am ordering them to BEAT A PATH TO CUSTOMERS' DOORS!"

One of the best newspapermen we ever knew, Raymond McCaw, night man of The New York Times for 23 years, has retired. . . . A Prairie Queen, Nebraska, boy who made good in the big city via St. Joseph, Laramie, Denver and Kansas City, Mac came to work on the New York Globe the same year that saw Russell Crouse, Maxwell Anderson, Bill Choney, Wesley Stout, Pat McNutt and this writer join that paper, and he was the best red dog and stud player in the lot, a great human being and the possessor of a solid efficiency in newspaper work that was the wonder of all. . . . Mac says he has in mind a swell palm tree in Tucson and intends to go out there and recline in its shade, but we know better. . . . He is no recliner and can be made to relax only at gunpoint. . . . Robert Montgomery has been coaching President Eisenhower on his TV technique. . . . Adlai Stevenson will probably continue by retaining Gregory Peck, and we wouldn't be surprised to hear that Harry Truman is working with Gary Cooper. . . . Another plan for a fare rise on the New Haven Road has led commuters to call it the "N. Y. N. H. & Heartless."

Bobo Rockefeller violated the old adage "Never change lawyers in mid-gusher." . . . (It was so still in Bobo's apartment last week you could hear an attorney dropped.) . . . Winthrop Rockefeller in a public statement said Bobo had repudiated a $5,000,000 settlement and was asking 10. . . . (Changing her oil fortune estimate, no doubt.) . . . Larry Langner, working with top show people, plans an American Shakespearean Festival at Stratford, Conn. . . . Stratford-on-the-Housatonic instead of on the Avon. . . . Well Stratford is a nice little town with a glamorous name, but it is only a stone's throw from Milford which, Broadway showmen should know, has one of the largest and most modern theaters in the country. . . . It was built in a spending orgy as part of a high school there, has every modern stage device and seats more people than most Broadway houses.

"What about salesmanship?"

"That's the key to everything," he snapped. "People have been beating paths to my door in such numbers that my salesmen have lost initiative. We had had an era of prosperity when people seeking a new mousetrap had to get on a waiting list. From now on the salesmen will have to go after business. I am ordering them to BEAT A PATH TO CUSTOMERS' DOORS!"

STATE OF THE POLITICAL UNION

Robert S. Allen Reports

French Botching Training Natives In Indo-China

Washington — France is botching the job of training the natives — needed — of native forces which could smash the intensifying Red aggression in Indo-China. Further, although the U. S. is spending more than $1,000,000,000 for arms aid this fiscal year in this protracted war, France has rejected a proposal that the U. S. supervise the training of effective Vietnam troops.

The critical lack of such battle forces is a basic reason for the desperate military situation in Indo-China. President Eisenhower personally made the offer of American training assistance at the Bermuda conference last month. But Premier Laniel turned it down. Authority for this startling inside information is Secretary of State Dulles.

He disclosed it at a private meeting with the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, during which Dulles discussed significant developments in the Far East, Italy, relations with Russia and other pressing foreign problems. Following are additional significant highlights of this two-and-a-half hour session that can be published.

The political situation in Italy is viewed as so ominous that serious consideration is being given whether large-scale economic and military aid be continued to that Red-periled country. This viewpoint is directly counter to certain "inspired" reports that American spending will be increased in Italy.

The "super structure of NATO" is strong, but its base is unsound because of the economic and political weaknesses of France and Italy. Also, Dulles deems it increasingly unlikely that the French will ever approve the European Defense Community plan, that calls for the recreation of German divisions.

President Eisenhower's decision to withdraw divisions from Korea was based on two underlying factors: (1) the Chinese have withdrawn three divisions, and (2) the U. S. sent two divisions to Korea shortly before the cease-fire agreement. Also, the "disengaged" divisions will not be returned to the U. S. One will be stationed in Hawaii and the other probably on Okinawa.

Dulles' review of the many troubles throughout the world was so somber that it drew a sharp exclamation from Senator Hubert Humphrey (D. Minn.). "It seems to me," he said, "that your gloomy appraisal of developments and trends certainly does not justify the President's optimistic assurances that the world is entering a peaceful era. Everything you've told us is far from that. Your survey is as disquieting as anything this Committee has heard in a long time."

The details — Dulles made no bones about being critical of France's failure to develop an effective native army in Indo-China, as the U. S. has done in Korea. "We are very unhappy about the matter," Dulles told the senators. "But there is little we can do about it."

"Can't we help more in training the natives?" asked Senator Alexander Wiley (R. Wis.), chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee. "That is exactly what we tried to do, but to no avail," explained Dulles. "The President himself proposed that to Laniel at Bermuda. The President offered to have the U. S. take an active role in training the Vietnamese. But the French would have none of it."

"Why not?" asked Senator J. W. Fulbright (D. Ark.). "Surely there is plenty of need for improving the training of the Vietnamese, on the basis of what has been happening the past several months."

"You are right," replied Dulles. "The poor training of the native troops is showing up constantly in the fighting. In a number of recent instances, these French-trained forces have broken and run when attacked by Communist Vietnamese. But the French are very touchy about any direct outside contacts with the Vietnamese, and the President's offer was politely but firmly turned down."

"But aren't we paying for more than half of the cost of that war?" demanded Senator Humphrey. "Just how much are we spending there?" "It will amount to more than $1,000,000,000," said Dulles. "So far this fiscal year, we have given the French $750,000,000 in money and military aid."

Teen-Agers Who Know Nothing Of Their Own Government Indict Education Process

Some months ago, I wrote of a peculiar questionnaire about the private lives of school-children which a parent had sent to me. Subsequently I received a letter from a Brooklyn school teacher who attacked me as "an average parent."

Parents have been around a long time, much longer than school-teachers. Most parents feel that they do the best they can for their children.

This teacher is very class-conscious. He wrote: "You are a practicing journalist and I am a practicing teacher. You can tell me plenty about your trade; I can tell you something about education. Have you ever visited the school during school week? Have you ever conferred with the teachers of your children or haven't you been sufficiently interested?"

I would not call myself a practicing journalist, the term being foreign to my trade. We do not practice on anybody or anything. We are workers in a trade which requires some little skill and a great deal of patience. Maybe, it takes more skill to be a teacher; I would not know, not having taught school since 33 years ago when I tried my hand at it for a spell.

I presume that each trade regards its own as the most difficult, as when physicians look down their noses at dentists, or when musicians always say that everybody else is no good. In our business, it is difficult to go in much for self-praise as no cover-up for laziness and ignorance is available, as editors, usually tough creatures, will tear your eyes out on the least provocation.

Also, the public can be ungenerous to a writer whose work stands nude and cold to be read or rejected, to be praised or cursed. Teachers have it much easier, I should imagine, because they can always blame "the system."

This school teacher goes further: "They (he quotes me) want to know whether the family owns a radio or television? You bet. That shows how progressive the schools are. We can slant our lessons by correlating what the child hears on radio or sees on television."

I thought that we sent our children to school to learn how to read and write, how to do arithmetic, algebra, trigonometry, Latin, French, history and similar subjects. Surely I do not send them to school to gain knowledge from the "Circus Kid," or "Martin Kane, Private Eye," or "Crime Busters" or from those sexy dames, who if they have no abnormal bosoms, buy them for exhibition purposes. Imagine slanting lessons to the tune of Milton Berle or Sid Caesar!

This teacher says: "Radio and television determine our assignments for homework, both as to time and content. The assignment is richer and fuller when it is related to radio and television. . . . I hope no teachers who are

My New York

—by Mel Heimer

Las Vegas, Nev. — I gamble. This is noted matter-of-factly because (1) eight out of 10 American men gamble and (2) my gambling is relatively small and an avocation. I am the second of two kinds of gambling men, the first being the chance-taker who hopes luck will be kind and let him roll seven, and the second being the poker-playing, horse-betting soul who likes to think he is pitting his experience and brains against other men's.

Roulette, blackjack and craps, the big games in this outpost, are not my cup of tea, but since these are games which one can play in New York only at the risk of being run in by the law, I play them here. I have played them in Nice and in Portugal and in a number of other sinful Gomorrah and while I consider them childish sports, I string along and tell the blackjack dealer to hit me or go on playing that elusive 15 on the wheel.

However, with all this, I am like most gamblers, amateur and professional. I never have asked myself why. Today I did, and do you know? There is no answer.

I asked myself why today because I came into the Sands casino after a late breakfast, bought my customary five-dollar stack of dice chips, which I can make go a long but not endless way by betting red or black progressively—and presently had company at the table. His name was Glenn McCarthy and he wore dark glasses and old jacket and slacks, and told the croupier to give him a thousand dollars worth of chips for a starter. He looked a lot younger than he must be.

Now, Glenn McCarthy is one of those men to whom money must mean close to nothing. Not because he's aesthetic and lives on dreams and song but because so much of it has passed through his hands. Texas oil wildcatter and hotel mogul, he built Houston's well-known Shamrock hotel and has been in and out of headlines for more than a decade.

It's times have been good and they have been bad but always he has been the kind of man, who, if they are bad, tosses his last hundred dollars on the double O, then gets up and, the next day, raises five million dollars to bring in a new geyser.

Well, we sat there—the foot-loose newspaperman carefully husbanding his five-dollar stack, and the Operator betting five hundred on the black. After a while the drifters gathered around the wheel, because at 11 a. m., even in a large-scale casino like this, Glenn McCarthy with thousands-dollar stacks are not usually on hand.

I kept playing—but I kept looking sideways at the impassive, silent McCarthy and after awhile the big question crystallized in my mind: What was he doing here? A thousand dollars worth of roulette chips in front of him. To Glenn McCarthy, a thousand dollars means, maybe, a week's phone bill. What did he get out of it? It would mean, simply, he had a little more money.

And that was when, suddenly, I turned around and looked at myself.

I am many light years from being wealthy—and yet, suppose I sweated away at the table and, maybe, doubled my five bucks? I would walk away from the table as pleased as Keefe Besselle was the other day when he told me he was great, just great. If I had a phone, five bucks would pay one week's phone bill for me. Or, more likely, I would take the five bucks over to the blackjack table and lose it in two minutes.

What was I doing there, anyway? It was a nice casino, with wait-staff and carpeting and soft music and polite dealers, but outside on the bleached, dry streets of Las Vegas, the sun was shining brightly and the gentle purple mountains across the desert were wonderful to behold. I was sick. I was crazy. I had lost the way.

Well—the way I said, there wasn't any answer. I thought of the way the head doctors say gambling is a sign, a symptom of personal unhappiness, a retreat into a world where a white chip makes you equal to other men, the way a kum can. But that wasn't it. I knew that. So I sat there and thought about it and came up with nothing at all.

Finally, Glenn McCarthy cashed his chips and went to breakfast. I think he won three thousand dollars, gave or took a few hundred. Right after he left, a small, nervous man came in and sat in a vacant chair. "Gimme some chips," he said importantly to the dealer—and threw him two dollars. I wasn't in any mood for any more analyzing, so I cashed my chips and left. I lost $3.50. Everything is relative.

County YMCA May Install New Branch At Mount Pocono

Possibilities Explored By Y Directors

Installation of a YMCA branch in Mount Pocono may be made in about a year.

That was the gist of preliminary discussions last night by county Y directors meeting in Stroudsburg.

Other major moves by directors: approval of the awarding of a $24,500 contract for the Barrett branch construction; and revision of the Y constitution and bylaws.

The possibility of a Mount Pocono branch had not been brought up at earlier meetings of the board. But the possibilities have been explored by Mount Pocono residents for some years, and last night the matter was presented formally to directors.

Preliminary idea is that the Y headquarters would be the borough firehouse; that there would be a board of directors of 10 or 12 men; and that there would be a secretary eventually to govern the activities of the branch.

The Barrett secretary could assist with the groundwork and setting up of the branch.

A Mount Pocono branch would be an affiliate of the county Y, the same as the Barrett branch. This move would be in line with the original county Y idea of having a branch at the major population centers of the county.

Actions on the Barrett branch consisted of approving the resolutions of the Barrett board, which met Monday night.

The board approved the drawing up and signing of a 20-year lease by the Y, with the option of a 20-year renewal. Consideration would be $1 a year. This in effect means use of the land and building, an old dwelling, is being donated by the lessor, the Mountain-home Methodist Church, of which Rev. Harold McMurray is pastor. Rev. McMurray is also chairman of the Barrett branch directors.

Second action was the awarding of the remodeling and renovating contract to Charles Frank, a Stroudsburg contractor. Specifications include adding a kitchen, living quarters for the secretary, and rest rooms, as well as remodeling and redecorating.

Frank was the lowest of five bidders.

Earl F. Groner reported on the work of his committee on revising the constitution and bylaws. The directors spent about two hours going over the changes, aimed at "modernizing" and improving the articles to make them more easily understood, and more adaptable to present situations faced by the Y. The committee suggestions were adopted.

Chief changes are: One—Upping the number of directors from 25 to 27.

Two—Board members may be elected to no more than two three-year terms. They may then be eligible for reelection after a one-year "waiting" period.

Three—Any member of the association who is 21 and who meets membership requirements is eligible to serve on the board of directors.

The last change brings the local by-laws into conformity with State and National by-laws of the YMCA.

Dr. Joseph Noonan said there was no progress in attempts to settle the strike which halted construction of the new Y last year.

Merle C. Ostrom said the county Ministerium had approved a plan to stage Y programs during YMCA week in the last part of January.

A nominating committee under Dr. Noonan will draw up a slate of candidates for Y offices in a few days.

The report of General Secretary John R. Wilson dealt with a yearly round-up of the Y financial picture.

Said the report in part:

"Financially there is no need for me to remind you that we conducted a capital improvement campaign during the year with a goal of $350 thousand having had pledged $311,991.91 to that fund and collecting in cash $95 thousand to date. In the general account we have balanced the budget, total receipts being $19,254.49 and expenditures $19,088.49 leaving a balance of $166 over and above the operating expenses for the year.

Some $804.38 of our total income was a refund from the cancellation of insurance on the old building.

This was offset almost entirely by the purchase of new equipment amounting to $663.63. The new equipment included a new mimeograph machine and a $200 payment on the bus which was purchased for use in day camp. The other $600 needed for the bus was taken from the gas station account.

Also $4,683.69 of the total income represented items paid out of the general treasury and which was reimbursed by the building fund.

The balance in the general account at the end of the year is $735.89. Unpaid bills, social security and withholding amount to $332.68.

Plush Offers Resignation From Council

Bangor. George B. Plush, first ward Republican councilman, told The Daily Record last night he is resigning from Borough Council.

Plush gave as his reason objection to "partisan politics" in the Borough Council. He said his resignation was a protest against "rule by party" without concern for the public.

Bangor council is now governed by an 8 to 4 Republican majority.

Plush said his resignation was an outgrowth of Monday night's stormy council session in which Isaiah Resh, a Republican, was named tax collector to fill the vacancy created by Max Oxford's death.

Although he himself is a Republican, Plush told The Record, he had placed the name of John Farleigh, last year's council president in the nominations "because I felt he was best suited for the job."

Farleigh is a Democrat. He was defeated for reelection to borough council in last November's election.

"I knew I might be open to criticism by nominating Farleigh," Plush said, "but it was obvious that he had a better background for the post than any of the other applicants, due to his long association with Mr. Oxford while serving as council president."

Mr. Plush said he had mailed his letter of resignation to the council last night.

At Monday night's meeting, Plush nominated Farleigh but a roll call vote defeated the nomination 7 to 5. Plush voted with the minority.

The council then proceeded to select Resh, the defeated Republican candidate for the tax collector post in the race against Oxford last November—on a third ballot.

Resh was elected by the same vote, seven 'yes'; five 'no.'

Later in this same meeting, Plush suggested that councilmen should serve without pay, the same as school directors do. Councilmen

Natural Gas Flowing Into Bangor Area

Bangor—Natural gas begins to flow into the Bangor-Roseto area at 7 a.m. today.

Announcement of opening of natural gas lines was made last night by J. Paul Hart, manager of Citizens Gas Co., Stroudsburg, and area director for Penn Fuels Co.

According to Hart, a crew of 25 men will be on hand this morning to start the conversion. The men will go into homes and ready appliances, Hart said.

If all goes well, Hart said, the job should be completed by 10 a.m. Crewmen will then revisit area homes to make minor adjustments, Hart said.

Dower Funeral Services Held

Funeral services for William G. Dower, Chipperfield Drive, were held at 2 p.m. yesterday in Lancaster funeral home.

Rev. P. N. Wulfsen officiated. Interment was made in Laurelwood Cemetery. Pallbearers were Edgar Serfass, Lona Arnold, Elmer Stine, Harlan Biggs, Clarence Kitchen and Milton Stevens.

now receive $20 per month salary. No action was taken on this matter, however.

In his statement to The Daily Record last night, Plush said he "could not help feeling I have reached the end of my usefulness to the citizens of Bangor" when confronted by a situation in which "party rule" dominated.

"I feel, sincerely, that party politics have no place in the running of borough councils or school boards," Plush concluded.

Plush was one of two GOP councilmen from Bangor's first ward. Second Republican is Harry Beshler. Ralph Erdman, a Democrat, is the remaining first ward councilman.

Plush had just completed the second year of his four-year term as Bangor councilman.

PUC Grants Lower Gas Rates Here

Harrisburg, (AP)—The Public Utility Commission yesterday authorized the Citizens Gas Co., Stroudsburg, to cut rates of 2,233 customers in the Stroudsburg-East Stroudsburg area an estimated $20,500 annually—on five days' notice.

The utility said that its switch from manufactured to straight natural gas will permit reductions of up to 40 per cent.

Conversion from propane air-type gas already has been made, the firm told the PUC.

Of the company's 2,561 consumers, only 261 minimum bill general service and seven flat rate refrigeration users are unaffected by the revision.

The minimum rate under the general service schedule remains unchanged at $1.50 net, and the charge for the first three therms remains at 60 cents per therm.

Cost of the next 15 will drop from 37 to 32 cents a therm; the following 18, from 37 to 19 cents a therm.

Two Factors Determine House Type

By DAVID G. BARETHUR,
AP Real Estate Editor

When planning to build or buy a new house, most people do some thinking on the question of design. What style of house is the best investment?

What type will prove to be a passing fad?

Should we learn to like ground floor bedrooms?

Can picture windows be used in a little cottage with shutters?

And so on — innumerable questions that defy simple yes or no answers.

Essentially the problem boils down to two basic factors:

1. The house for you is the house you like.

2. It depends somewhat on where you want your house to be.

A vote of preference on design, whether taken among prospective owners, mortgage lenders, or architects, can differ widely geographically. The split-level house, the one-story so-called ranch house, the conventional two-story house and the story-and-a-half cottage all have their advantages and disadvantages.

Most economical to build in northern regions where basements are popular — the style that gives most house for the money — is the two-story dwelling, or dormer-to-the-roof (one-and-a-half-story) house.

These styles require the least excavation, foundation and roof area. They are economical to heat and maintain. They can be fitted suitably to smaller plots, yet present an attractive appearance on any acreage.

Easiest to live in is the one-story house, laid out like a spacious apartment with no stairs to climb, no high windows to be fitted with screens or storm sash, readily adapted to indoor-outdoor living, a natural for window-walls and open planning.

But when all the rooms of a house are built on the ground level, more land is needed, more foundation work is necessary and much more roof space is exposed.

The difference in heating efficiency between two-story and one-story houses is apparent when it comes to insulation. Tests have shown that it is more important to insulate the sidewalls of a two-story house than it is to insulate the roof.

And it is more important to insulate the roof of a one-story house than it is to insulate the sidewalls.

When it comes to air cooling, the one-story house takes the lead. Keeping upstairs bedrooms cool becomes slightly more complicated in a two-story house, where heat naturally rises to the second floor.

The split-level house, originally designed for slopes, with its two-story wing on the downhill side and its one-story or story-and-a-half wing placed midway up, is a compromise between two-story economy and one-story popularity.

Nowadays many split-level houses are built on comparatively flat land because of their advantages in meeting family living needs. Lots of women like the idea of having bedrooms removed slightly from the living room-dining room-kitchen level. In the split-level, this separation is only half a flight, which reduces stair climbing.

On the other hand, you climb a few stairs almost any place you go in a split-level.

In communities where architectural restrictions have been included in zoning regulations, virtually blackballing modern one-story houses, split-level construction gets under the wire. Gray-haired city fathers may insist on "colonial architecture." You put shutters on a split-level and that's that. After all, they built split-levels in colonial days too.

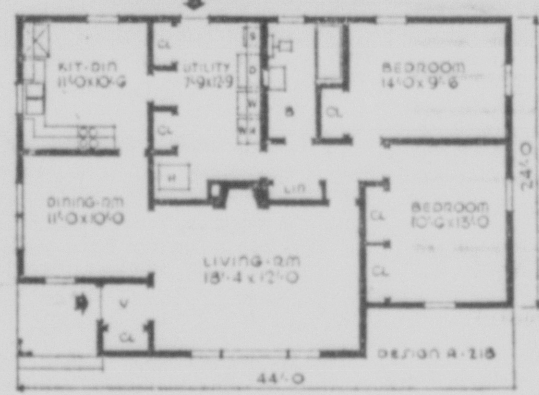

And as for a mortgage investment, you'll find one type of layout as acceptable as another almost any place. The same holds for resale value. No matter what kind of house you like, there are plenty of other families who will like the same type.

Make Moving Easy

Moving day can be made easier by using patched tags of various colors to identify your packing. Simply attach the same color tag to each room's furniture. Movers can then easily place them.

Shoots Paste

An old ear syringe is a handy instrument for shooting paste in back of small loose sections of wallpaper.

The Audrain, according to the working drawings, calls for frame construction and an insulated floor slab laid over a cinder or gravel fill with no basement. Exterior finish is planned to be siding and asphalt shingles.

The floor plan consists of two bedrooms, bath, utility room, living room, kitchen and a separate dining room.

Space is provided in the utility room for heater, coal and storage closets and a large supply cabinet over the laundry equipment.

Other features in this home include picture window, fireplace, vestibule, covered entrance, recessed bath tub and the dining space placed in the kitchen.

Wardrobe closets, with storage space above each, are used throughout.

Overall dimensions are 44 feet by 24 feet. Floor area totals 1,135 square feet while the cubage is 13,464 cubic feet.

For further information about THE AUDRAIN, write the Small House Planning Bureau, St. Cloud, Minn. In Canada, the Small House Planning Bureau of Canada, Box 1193, St. John's, New Brunswick.

Easy Ways To Spark Decor With Fabrics

You can add new sparkle to a room or piece of furniture with a few yards of attractive, tumbled, decorator fabric and, sometimes, a little paint. A shabby table can be transformed and a humble chair turned into a decorative asset. Here are some suggestions worked out by Desley fabric designers.

If an occasional or a round dining table looks shabby, treat it to a fashionable two-part cover, with box-pleated, floor-deep skirt and separate top. Use unfigured glazed chintz or antique satin in a bright color for the skirt and tack it lightly to the table edge. Several different tops in prints and stripes are a good idea. Use a square of fabric for one; make another circular with a scalloped edge; give third a tabbed edge.

Appropriate fabrics come in so many colors, designs and textures that it is easy to find one to fit into the existing decor. There are chintzes in prints, like the authentic "Heritage" designs by Desley, in solid colors, candy stripes, and gold stripes. Cotton-and-rayon antique satin can be had in prints or in rich Royale solid colors. And other suitable fabrics range from whippersnapper plain or in prints, linen-like Hermosa cloth, and nubby Capri cloth.

To make handsome pieces for hall or dining spot, repaint a couple of old, wrought-iron garden chairs and add bright slip-covered cushions. Before painting, rub off any rust spots with steel-wool. Then paint black, green, white or a color to suit your color scheme. For comfort, make the cushions of foam rubber about 1½" thick. First cut a pattern the size and shape of the seats to use as a guide in cutting the foam rubber. Slipcover the cushions with antique satin in a sparkling Royale shade; add tapes of the fabric; tie the cushions in place.

You can give fresh interest to the bedroom by making change-about sets of dressing-table skirt and slipcovers for the headboard of the bed and the cushion of the dressing-table chair. If your drapery and bedspread are in a print, make the new toggery of plain fabric in the print colors. For example, if the print has a design of pink and blue flowers and green leaves, make one new set in pink, another in blue and the third in green. Both chrom-sprun and glazed chintz work out very effectively for these.

A double sink is located in the center of the kitchen and has an illuminated dial to indicate the temperature of the water desired through its single faucet. Its drain is electrically controlled.

Push buttons make a food mixer rise from a table top, start a motor for a floor sifter, raise ovens from counter level to a handy waist level height. The ovens are equipped with devices to pass charcoal or hickory smoke over meats for desired flavors.

One oven has a removable roller-serve spit; the other is a simulated electronic oven which will cook bacon in seconds, bake potatoes in about 5 minutes, roast a turkey in 45 minutes.

Although this is a dream kitchen, it actually works, and Mason Roberts, vice president of General Motors managing the Frigidaire division, says "some of the unusual features could be manufactured on a mass production basis and be made available to the public very shortly, if popularly accepted."

Dream Kitchen That Works Being Set Up For Show

New York, GPs—A completely automatic push button kitchen, designed to meet the homemaker's objections to stooping and reaching, is now being set up at the Waldorf Astoria for the GM Motorama show opening Jan. 21.

Direct Access To Celler Advised

Access to the cellar from outside the house is particularly desirable, now that basements are being used so widely for recreation rooms and living quarters. Safety demands a second exit in case of fire.

Stairs leading directly to the yard also eliminate the necessity of carrying tools ashes and rubbish through the house.

Steps and bulkheads can be installed at relatively little expense and will soon prove well worth the cost.

Screening Keeps Gutters Clear

An easy way to keep leaves and other trash out of roof gutters is to take a section of wire insect screening and roll it into a cylinder the same diameter as the gutter. Fasten it in this shape with a few pieces of wire and then place it in the gutter. No other fastening is required and if it becomes necessary to get at the gutter for one reason or another, the screening can be lifted right out.

Wood Ashes Worth Saving For Garden

Wood ashes from the fireplace are worth saving for digging into the garden in spring. Too many are harmful, but a few trowelfuls can be mixed with the planting soil for top of all kinds and about one trowelful for each tomato plant. They can also be used sparingly in the soil around peas and beans.

Toning Down Bricks

A red brick fireplace often can be given a softer, lighter color by rubbing down the surface with a carborundum block available at paint stores. This grinding also will remove soot stains by revealing a new clean surface.

Binding Doors

Loose hinges often cause doors to bind.

Select Lamps For Room Balance, Place Them About Room For Convenience And Comfort

If you have been in rooms where it was impossible to enjoy a book because there were no lamps beside comfortable chairs; or tried to write at a desk in a dark corner evidently intended only for daylight use, you have realized how important it is to have lamps correctly placed.

Lighting should balance just the same as furniture or color. Lamps should be evenly distributed about the room and placed for convenience and comfort in connection with the furniture. Lamps must be both decorative and practical.

Usually there is a pair of lamps by the sofa: a lamp between two chairs; the desk may have a lamp but all of them when arranged should be approximately of the same over-all height.

Today, preference is for tall lamps and large-scale shades to distribute the lighting over the room, illuminating both the standing and sitting levels. If the room is low-ceilinged, use low tables rather than small lamps.

It's generally safe to select plain colored bases that will fit into any scheme and will not interfere with the colors of the fabrics. Drum shades are the most popular because they throw a light downward and their wide tops permit illumination upward.

Select lamps which set firmly on their bases. The size of the tables should be considered. Have them large enough so that the lamps will not be knocked off. A lamp which is too low to give practical illumination is a discomfort, and one that is too ornate is a distraction.

A white lamp, the only light spot in an otherwise harmonious scheme of dark tones, will stand out like a sore thumb. Good lamps never just happen. They are carefully planned.

In simple rooms, shades can be made charming when covered with fabrics. A chintz shade finished with bands of color picking up several of the colors elsewhere in the room, is attractive.

Small plaids in red or blue and white are suggested by the Desley designers for rooms furnished in early American style. Or plain shades may be made interesting when decorated with cut-out motifs taken from the drapery fabric. These decorations need not always be flower motifs, for some of the new fabrics have amusing patterns of fruits and vegetables as in "Kitchen Bouquet."

Nails Stay Driven

Nails driven in at a slight angle have a lot more holding power than those driven perfectly straight.

The workbench itself is the heart of a workshop, and it can in fact be a self-contained workshop. Some lumber companies sell workbenches that are ready to install, and of course all sell the materials needed for making one.

Here's a tip that will help any craftsman: Use one-fourth inch "penned wood" as a working surface. Just fasten it with nails or screws to the rough lumber top. It is smooth, dense and tough and will wear long and well.

A modern tool-board that is simple as ABC to install and use may be obtained from lumber yards. "Peg-board" panels have fixtures designed for holding tools. They fit into the numerous holes which have been punched into the panel.

A modern tool-board like this is an ideal companion piece for the sturdy workbench. The two together form the nucleus of a fine workshop.

Home owners miss great enjoyment if they haven't their own workshop. Besides the great economy in having one, it furnishes a worthwhile, creative hobby. Spare time spent in building and using a workshop is plus time in enjoyable living.

Mrs. Maxwell Speaks To Music Club

American music and Americans' appreciation of music have both made great strides during the past 20 years, Mrs. Paul Maxwell last night pointed out in her talk at the Music Study Club of Stroudsburg at their meeting at the Stroud Community House.

Mrs. Maxwell, editor of the Music Journal, is a member of the American Guild of Organists and of Sigma Alpha Iota, national women's professional music fraternity. She was one of the founders of the Rochester Oratorio Society.

Speaking informally, she spoke of how far America has come since the days when it was considered necessary to go to Europe for our music. Now, Americans are going to Europe to introduce American music, particularly since World War II.

She cited the growth of Little Symphony orchestras and small community orchestral groups which now number more than 500 in all sections of the country. Choral music and the growth of choral societies have also contributed to appreciation of good music, she said.

She quoted statistics showing the increasing number of people who listen to recording and that the percentage of serious recorded music sold has risen from 5 per cent to 30 per cent.

Mrs. Maxwell, who was introduced by Miss Bess Bachman, had as the theme of her talk "Trends and Currents in American Music." She illustrated some of those trends by a kinescope film "This Is My Country" showing the history of America through poems by Whittier, Longfellow, Emerson, and Whitman, illustrated by choral music of the Waring Pennsylvanians, with the music composed by Roy Ringwald.

At the executive board meeting, plans were discussed for the club's May Concert to be given during Music Week. Choral rehearsal followed the meeting.

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

It certainly wasn't in the night-narc category—more like one of those dreams with a fairy-tale quality. One moment I knew perfectly well where I was—driving along the road that runs through where MacIntosh's old vineyard used to be. The next moment I was as lost as if I'd been suddenly transported to some fabulous village in Switzerland.

There were snow-covered roads branching every which way—lights twinkling from the top of pine trees, glowing from windows that seemed to be suspended in the air above, lighting up a carpet that seemed directly overhead.

And out of the dream appeared a Swiss guide—or, no, it wasn't. Suddenly turned into Chud Beninger, who very obligingly piloted me up the right driveway to Ann and Holt Wyckoff's door.

But even then, I couldn't somehow get out of the dream-like quality of walking into one of those houses you see in magazines but never for real—of opening a door and suddenly finding myself on a stage—no, not a stage but a balcony over the living room filled with people.

It took a while for the familiar faces to emerge from a scene that might have been an illustration for "Gracious Entertaining" or something. The food looked like an illustration, too, but tasted quite substantial. I can assure you.

Just the same, I'm going to go back by daylight just to assure myself that it didn't all vanish as soon as my back was turned.

Listen To Bobby Westbrook daily, Monday through Friday, on "The Party Line" WPPO, 10-15 a.m.

William L. Will

Elders To Be Honored At Meeting

The congregation of Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church will honor two of its elders at the meeting tonight at 7 in the church school auditorium on their retirement as ruling elders.

William L. Will with 43 years as ruling elder of the local church holds the record for length of service on the session. Born in Scotland, Mr. Will came to this country after his graduation from Aberdeen University as a chemical engineer. He married a girl from Kingston and they lived in Scranton where they were members of the Second Presbyterian Church.

When they moved to Stroudsburg in 1899, they joined the First Presbyterian Church in Stroudsburg and he and his wife both took an active part in its affairs. Mr. Will was an assistant superintendent for many years and later served as superintendent. He was elected to the board of elders in 1911 and has served continuously ever since.

Yesterday he recalled with pride that he and Charles Mott had been very active in the establishment of the Fifth Street Mission.

He recalled vividly the winter afternoon when he and the minister, then Rev. Mr. Hutchinson, walked through the deep snow for Sunday afternoon services at the mission. The snow completely covered a drainage ditch along the road, and Mr. Hutchinson almost disappeared from sight when he stepped on the thin snow covering.

David Griffiths is also retiring tonight as ruling elder, a position he has held since 1939. Mr. Griffiths and his wife also came to the Stroudsburg church during Mr. Hutchinson's ministry and they have both been active in the Sunday school. Mr. Griffiths served for some years as superintendent of the Adult Department and has also taught in the W. R. Easton Bible class.

Both men will remain as elders in the local church, although resigning from the active role in the session.

The third resignation will be that of Richard L. Turner who has served as elder for the past four years. He has now moved to the south.

Robert W. Brown, who has served as trustee and as elder for fifty years, will pay tribute to the retiring elders at tonight's meeting.

Birth Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Paul K. Miller of Reading, announce the birth of a daughter on December 28. The baby, which weighed 8 pounds at birth, has been named Paula Kay. Mrs. Miller is the former Glenda Fralley.

Cancer Workshop

Members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Auxiliary will meet on Wednesday night at 8 to work on cancer dressings. Any members who wish to help will be welcome.

Westwood Class

The Westwood Class of the Stroudsburg Methodist Church will meet at the home of Mrs. Arthur George, on the Lackawanna Trail, on Thursday night at 8 for a social.

Past Officers Tonight

Past Officers of the Sons of Union Veterans Auxiliary will meet tonight at 8 at the home of Mrs. Reta Hunsecker, Main St., Stroudsburg.

Poplar Valley WSCS To Print Own Cookbook

Poplar Valley — Cook books of the favorite recipes of members of the Poplar Valley Woman's Society of Christian Service will be published by the society, it was decided at the first meeting of the new year held at the home of Mrs. Oren Reish.

Volunteers working on the books will be Mrs. James Cyphers, Mrs. Fred Dennis, Mrs. Oren Reish, Mrs. Edward Gunn, Mrs. Horace Brewer and Mrs. Leon Parcell.

The group also decided to spend a full day or evening at the regular monthly meeting sewing on items for the summer bazaar.

Mrs. Ernest Brewer and Mrs. Norman Dennis volunteered to keep the church clean during January and Mrs. Edward Gunn and Mrs. Albert Werkheiser offered to do it during February. Mrs. Werkheiser is a new member of the society.

Major emphasis of the social hour was the "pal party" which followed the meeting. Mrs. Elwood Fenner acted as Santa Claus and distributed gifts. Before the members opened the gifts they each tried to guess who their pals had been during the past year. New names were chosen.

At refreshment time, the children of members who had gone roller skating, and the men of the Reish family, who had been putting a new ceiling in the chicken house, joined the members of the society for the party.

Those present were Mrs. Paul Albert, Mrs. Ernest Brewer, Mrs. Horace Brewer, Mrs. Ted Bask, Mrs. Thomas Carson, Mrs. James Cyphers, Mrs. Edward Gunn, Mrs. Fred Dennis, Mrs. Norman Dennis, Mrs. Elwood Fenner, Mrs. Joyce Gunn, Mrs. Edward Gunn, Mrs. Leon Parcell, Miss Emma Pleyer, Mrs. Leonard Reish, Mrs. Oren Reish, Mrs. Donald Reish and Mrs. Albert Werkheiser. Mrs. Russell Drake was a guest.

The February meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Edward Dennis with Mrs. George Benkert and Mrs. Leonard Reish assisting as hostesses.

William Bonser Is Honored On Birthday

Congregation Of St. John's Has Meeting

The election of four new deacons and the report of progress on the first unit of the new building program marked the congregational meeting of St. John's Lutheran Church, Stroudsburg, last night.

Rev. Dr. P. N. Wolsen presided at the meeting when Charles A. Keiper was re-elected as a trustee. Howard L. Keiper Jr. was elected a deacon to the unexpired term of two years of the late G. Alvin Shook. Elected as deacons for three year terms were Floyd E. Fetherman, Charles A. Widner and Edward R. Shook.

The first unit of the new building program will be ready for use in a few weeks it was announced. The new furniture is arriving and is being installed, and the Sunday school rooms have been repainted and the floors sanded.

Dr. Wolsen gave his annual report, and all the organizations of the church and Sunday school gave their annual reports at the meeting.

New Fabrics Distinguish Fashion Preview

New York, (AP)—Handsome nubbin silk tweeds that look like wool, and wools so light and smooth they look like silk, are headlines in spring suit fashions being previewed this week by the nation's fashion press.

Philip Mangone, dean of the old school of Italian-born tailors, features silk suits in a wide range of distinguished fabrics ranging from soft multi-colored silk tweeds to monotone slubs and silk-and-mohair mixtures in a series destined for top popularity in the Easter parade. A softly rounded line is characteristic of jackets, which have sleeves cut in one with the jackets, curved seams accentuating the bustline and ingenious collars and pocket detail. Skirts are uniformly slim.

Mangone also shows a group of box-jacket suits, some with novelty pique collars and vests. He accentuates the elegance in a dramatic group of coats in high colors and unusual fabrics, such as a coat in yellow silk linen with all-over draw-work pattern, splattered in rhinestones. A series of soft tweed coats also feature sparkle trim.

Anthony Blotta, another famous tailor, likes soft tweed suits in spring flower colors for Easter, features such hints as minims, leather and violet. Feminine tailoring is pointed up by small round collars, tab pocket details and matching chiffon scarves bound in the tweed of the suits.

Elsa Schaparelli's coat and suit collection for the House of Harry, Frechtel accentuates the Parisian touch of open collars either built up to frame the face or cut low and square, usually fitted in with silk scarves to match jacket linings. She achieves the empire line by high-waisted seams and tucks, shows short or push-up sleeves with dropped armholes in both suits and coats and favors lightweight, spongy wool tweeds.

Jeweled pastel cashmere jackets for evening are a feature of the collection at original modes, where the loose silhouette with rounded natural shoulders remains the favorite silhouette.

SPCA Thursday

The Monroe County branch of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals will meet on Thursday night at 7:30 at the Wyckoff Recreation Rooms.

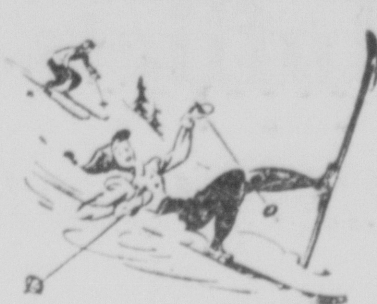

Harold Knipe

A nationwide television debut is scheduled in January for a new sharpshooting drama, "The Days of Buffalo Bill." The series will center around the legend of a cowboy character, Annie Oakley. Taking the title role is a young Arkansas blonde with a warm, direct manner and a soft, sweet smile to drink.

This new rival for the western stars is Gail Davis, who was chosen for the role of "Annie" after a thorough tryout of hundreds of Hollywood beauties. She's a protégé of Gene Autry, and has appeared in 15 of the feature films he's made.

Gail is an expert horsewoman and a crack shot. "Annie" describes her as a "two-bitted, straight shooting gal." In the Annie Oakley series she is supposed to follow the cardinal rule of never shooting at animals... only at outlaws. But being a real markswoman, she'll never shoot them fatally... just bring them down. This is a happy compromise between the opponents of blood and thunder TV shows and those who say wild west stories are lies.

We don't know whether this new series is slated for the children or the grownups... but we'll bet Pop won't turn this one off. Be sure the family will suffer if you let this series go. Start off the New Year brightly by having your present TV set serviced by Knipe's Television & Radio Service, 18 N. Sixth St. Phone 628-4.

Alice Keller President Of Kellers' Society

Cherry Valley — The Ladies Aid Society of the Kellers' Reformed Church met at the home of Mrs. Paul Albert last week with a pal party and election of officers featured at the meeting. The secret pals exchanged gifts and new names were chosen for the coming year.

Miss Alice Keller was elected president of the society; Mrs. Clarence Welter, vice president; Mrs. Anne Mansfield, secretary; Mrs. Josephine Porter, assistant.

Present for the meeting were Mrs. Ruth Cramer and daughter, Mary Lou, Miss Margaret Keller, Mrs. Dorothy Lee and son, Allen, Miss Helen Keller, Miss Alice Keller, Mrs. Mary Baker, Mrs. Roger Mansfield, Mrs. Josephine Porter, Mrs. Clarence Welter and the hostess, Mrs. Dorothy Albert.

Nothing I've heard about forthcoming spring and summer fashions impressed me half so much as the impromptu preview presented in our lounge a few minutes ago by Doris Hinton. Doris had been regaling us with a chick's eye-view of the new separates for casual wear when someone said, "I dare you to model a set. If they're half as good as you say, prove it."

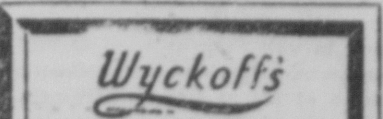

Five minutes later the challenge was accepted, and you could practically hear castanets when Doris re-appeared. No torador was ever more vivid or elegant as he entered the arena. Our sports-wear saledady had combined a full, sleeveless blouse of flaring red crinkle crepe (fashioned with a tricky collar resembling a neckerchief) and a pair of knee breeches that were even spunkier than the Fancy Pants of last season. As though earlier copies of outador attire were not sufficiently form-fitting, designers have now added a shirred effect at the outside of each leg that's the zenith of omphalos.

The two pieces, Doris explained, constitute the ensemble she would choose for wedding the garden, preparing the barbecue, lounging in the sun, or walking barefoot on the beach. But for providing over the picnic table, she'd add the piece de resistance—a full, vertically striped skirt in two shades of brilliant red on white. Thus assembled, she was dignified and correct—until she suddenly swirled and we again glimpsed the breeches beneath. The effect was as startling as though the skirt of a broadsword evening gown had been snatched away to reveal red woolen underwear.

Doris says the matching shorts with their saucy side buttons and the matching halters are a bit startling too... real eyebrow lifters, but oh, so daringly daring. The prices are reasonable, another feature we like—$4.98 for the pants, $3.98 for the blouse, and $7.98 for the skirt.

The girl who wears these may not be awarded the bull's ears, but she'll surely steal a lot of roving wolf eyes. We guarantee it, or your money back.

Speaking of sportswear, I'd like you to see the "floradable," candy-striped, and checked cotton blouses that just arrived to sell at $2.98. "Honestly, they're the cutest things," Betty Shively told us. And they are too... young, cute, neat as a pin, pretty as a picture, and as eager to make friends as a six weeks old puppy. Some garments you never take for granted, because they're definitely in a class by themselves, yet you scarcely know they're around, because—like a good friend—they set you off to your best advantage and ask little in return. These are IE!... Marion Leedom tells me countless customers will be pleased to know about our new shipment of Jacquelin's "Planter Mix." This is a new plant food that does an excellent job of lifting the faded spirits of houseplants along about now. It contains everything needed for luxurious greenery, and promotes abundant flowering in African Violets, Begonias, Geraniums, Philodendrons, and the like. I'm particularly impressed by the price—a big bag costs only 25c, and it's really good, we hear. Silly thought, but I can't help wondering—if it does so much for ivy, what would it do for me if I mixed a teaspoon or two with my instant coffee? (Quick, Zella—your garden shears. I'm sprouting petunias!)... Stopping by the lingerie department to drool over the luscious nighties and robes, I found Jeanne Van Elten reminiscing about Sunday night's Ted Malone broadcast, when Robert Kintner, president of American Broadcasting Company, explained his philosophy. Jeanne was thrilled because of Bob's kind words about Stroudsburg and his years in the Presbyterian Sunday School and the local high school. I guess Bob Kintner is to each of us just about what the Lincoln Memorial is to the nation—a monument to which we point with respect, determination, and awe. And when he speaks of living the Golden Rule we know he means it, as did his mother before him... Why not drop in today? It's a wonderful day for looking!

Company G Campaigning For Recruits

Company G—Monroe County's National Guard unit—has started off the new year with a recruiting drive aimed at bringing more local men into National Guard service.

Reorganization of the 28th Division, Pennsylvania National Guard, started last May.

Reorganization of the local unit followed, with Capt. Walter C. G. Peterson as commanding officer. At present the company's membership of 28 is only a fraction of its authorized strength.

There are a number of advantages to joining the Guard, Capt. Peterson pointed out. Among them: credits can be earned toward a pension; a guardsman is paid for weekly drills and time in camp; he may work up through the ranks to a non-com's post or even earn a commission.

Information can be obtained on Company G or the National Guard by contacting Capt. Peterson at night or visiting the Company G armory in East Stroudsburg during the day.

Wild Turkey Costly

Wilson, N. C. (AP) — When Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Eason killed a 15-pound wild turkey with their car, the price was more than $1.66 a pound. The windshield replacement cost $25.

Dr. Roy K. Marshall, Noted Scientist, Indicted For Sending Obscene Letters

Philadelphia, (AP) — Dr. Roy K. Marshall, nationally known scientist and radio and television commentator, is under indictment on charges of sending obscene letters through the mails, U. S. District Judge J. Cullen Gandy disclosed yesterday.

Judge Gandy, in open court, said Marshall was indicted last Nov. 18 for sending obscene letters to five teen-age girls who wrote him seeking scientific advice. The judge said the indictment was impounded at the request of U. S. Attorney W. Wilson White.

Judge Gandy called White to his courtroom yesterday and asked the attorney to "hurry along" reports of psychiatric examinations of Marshall.

After the discussion between Judge Gandy and White the indictment remained impounded. Details of the charges and names of the girls involved were not discussed by Judge Gandy during the talk.

White said the situation has not crystallized yet and added:

"I observed the defendant before he was indicted. I had a suspicion he might be a sick man. I took the responsibility on my own. From what I have learned from the probation officer my original thoughts very well could be confirmed in this matter."

White said he had ordered a psychiatric examination for Marshall and hoped the reports would be ready in about a week.

Supreme Court Rules Against Scranton Bank

Philadelphia, (AP) — The Pennsylvania Supreme Court yesterday ruled on two issues affecting banks.

The high court, in an opinion by Justice Allen M. Stearns, ruled that a bank must make good a check it cashes despite a depositor's stop-payment order.

Then, in an opinion by Justice Charles A. Jones, the high court ruled that current market value of securities held for investment purposes should be used in determining the value of banks' capital shares for taxation purposes.

In a Scranton bank case, the court said that a bank can not limit the measure of damages for its own lack of good faith or failure to exercise ordinary care in handling a depositor's money.

The case at law involved the First National Bank of Scranton and one of its depositors, B. J. Thomas. The depositor signed a stop order but the bank inadvertently cashed the check anyway.

The common Pleas court of Lackawanna County ruled the bank should make good the money, but was reversed by the Superior Court.

The Supreme Court said that it has been enacted by the Legislature that "... no agreement of the bank can disclaim a bank's responsibility or limit the measure of damages for its own lack of good faith or failure to exercise ordinary care."

Justice John Bell dissented.

Weiss Photo Places First In Contest

A Stroudsburg photographer, Jesse Weiss, gained top honors in this week's photo contest sponsored by the Pocono Camera Club and staged at Wyckoff's Department Store for the sixth year.

Weiss won first prize in the black and white division. Other winners were Guy T. Dean and Harry Leida, both of East Stroudsburg. Honorable mention went to Irving Sommers and Warren Pennington. Sommers is president of the camera club.

Judges for the black and white entries, totaling 75, were Les Carlton, photographer for The Daily Record; Bob Logan, local artist, and Andrew McCarthy, associated with the photographic division of Wyckoff's.

Winners of the color transparency contest held in conjunction with the black and white contest test, are expected to be announced today before the first official showing of these slides in the Wyckoff store at 4:30 p.m.

Judges in this division were Ernest McNeely, Lynwood Genung, Thomas Knepp, Dr. Ross Wilson and Mrs. Harold James.

The contest was in charge of Oliver Wilson. Slides will be shown daily at 4:30 p.m. on the second floor of Wyckoff's where the print exhibit continues through Saturday night. The 20-minute presentation of colored slides also is listed for 2:30, 3:30 and 8 p.m. Saturday.

Election Held By Bangor Congregation

Bangor—The annual congregational meeting of St. John's Evangelical and Reformed Church was held Monday night, following the congregational covered dish supper.

The meeting was opened with prayer by Rev. John C. Brumback. Lester Houck was chosen chairman of the meeting. Harold Anglemeyer, chairman of the auditing committee, read the audits of the Cemetery and Maintenance Accounts, as well as various other church accounts.

Reports were read from the following church organizations: Women's Guild, Mrs. Lester Houck; Berean Class, Mrs. Hobart Blaine; Mite Society, Mrs. Clark Hahn; Men's Bible Class, Millard Ruth; Sunday School, Wallace Ruth; Cradle Roll, Mrs. Raymond Albert; the pastor read the annual parochial report.

Election of two elders to serve for three years each and two deacons for three years each was held. The elders are C. H. Stout and Lester Houck. The deacons are Clark Hahn and George Remagen.

Following the congregational meeting, a reorganizational meeting of the consistory was held. It was opened by Rev. Brumback, Lester Houck, former president, presided. He was again elected president; financial secretary, C. H. Stout; treasurer, George Remagen; secretary, O. K. Dennis, elder primary, J. L. Morris, elder secondary, W. R. Jordan, superintendent and treasurer of cemetery, O. K. Dennis.

Your Horoscope Today

By FRANCIS DRAKE

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 13, 1954

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Be careful what you sign, and before committing yourself to anything, use your good sense. Be careful!

April 21 to May 20 (Taurus) — Today's influences stress regularity and system. Don't overdo either. Feelings and opinions. Listen instead. Don't be too opinionated, however.

May 21 to June 20 (Gemini) — Think! It's a better day than you are likely to give it credit for being. Don't be discouraged by rebuffs or criticism. We ALL need those stimulants at times! They inspire ambition.

June 21 to July 20 (Cancer) — Do what you do well, and don't quibble or make excuses. Less talk, more action, please! ALWAYS be your innately gracious self! You won't require much more to get ahead now—or anytime.

July 21 to August 20 (Leo) — If you have tasks to attend to which you don't especially relish, or which you think others should do, count on before rejecting, and then DON'T regret it. If you can do them.

August 21 to September 20 (Virgo) — Fraternization and worry are two occasional Virgo traits, and today will doubtless tempt in this direction. So, you know what to do. And show down!

September 21 to October 20 (Libra) — Healthy outdoor exercise, indoor recreation and body-building gymnastics are in order IN THEIR PLACE, but there is also a place for rest, complete relaxation. Be a thoughtful judge.

October 21 to November 20 (Scorpio) — Discussions are fine more than usual today, and too much of any one thing is also harmful. Keep busy, but protect nerves.

November 21 to December 20 (Sagittarius) — The great benefits of prayer and music are never fully appreciated. Can you not make the most of this day for prayer? Even a short one?

December 21 to January 20 (Capricorn) — Of opportunity! They do not wrong you say I come no more when once I knock and fail to find you. You often see make the choice that we "had no opportunity." Look well into this day.

January 21 to February 20 (Aquarius) — Though troubled or confused, do not become flustered or lose faith—especially in your own capabilities.

February 21 to March 20 (Pisces) — Lead a hand to others today. And with a smile, friend! Think not upon unhappy remembrances, but do recall the courtesies done you and give the benefit of the doubt to all.

YOU BORN TODAY? Especially suited to your talents and temperament: Music, art, educational activities, literature, and the practical business field. Be careful not to indulge hot feelings, become too opinionated, or let conditions dampen your ardor, squelch your enthusiasm for further progress, which you can make well into old age. Jealousy is another temper. System, thrift, practical vision, logical reasoning, enterprise are among your top qualities. Birthdate of: Salmon P. Chase, statesman, artist.

Here is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, add the number 4. If the number is less than 6, add 2. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Clearing House Records Offered At Scoblick Trial

Scranton, (AP) — The government introduced records of the Tradesmen's National Bank and Trust Co. of Philadelphia yesterday in the trial of three brothers accused of conspiracy and mail fraud in a shortage of more than $169,000 at the former Mayfield State Bank.

One of the brothers is former Congressman James P. Scoblick, 45.

Defense Atty. Joseph P. Brennan vigorously objected to the introduction of the Tradesmen's bank records, particularly certain photographic records which he said were "tampered with in preparation for this trial."

According to the government, Tradesmen's bank was used as a clearing house for some of the checks.

Also on trial are Frank, 36, and Anthony Scoblick, 34.

A lineup of bank officials was scheduled to appear as government witnesses today.

Also scheduled to appear is Nicholas B. Uherak, president of the Russian Brotherhood Organization of Philadelphia. Former Mayfield Cashier Michael Senio, 51, who pleaded guilty to fraud in the case last week, was treasurer of the brotherhood.

Floyd J. Mattice, special assistant to the U. S. attorney general, chief prosecutor, claimed Senio "buried" checks of the Scoblicks in the brotherhood's account when he found no other way to dispose of them. Mattice said the brotherhood lost $77,000 which has been made good by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

A brief council meeting with Mary Allegar presiding, was held immediately following the worship service.

Holiday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sago were Mr. and Mrs. John Killeulen, Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Alice Thomas, Arlington, Va.; Mr. Eugene Killeulen, Baltimore, Md.; Mr. and Mrs. David Sago and son, of Bethlehem; Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Stetler and son, Gary, of Hatfield; Mr. and Mrs. Michael Wash and daughter, Veronica, of Tobyhanna.

The PTA will meet on Monday, Jan. 18 at 8 p.m.

Miss Joan Gloggiel, of Jackson Heights, Long Island, N. Y., spent the weekend here.

Mrs. Paul Henning and daughter, Kaye Louise, of Allentown, are spending the week with Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Pope and family.

Mrs. Joseph Blaise, Mrs. Pat Ferand and Miss Patricia Ann Alberly spent the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Crawford, of New York City.

Delaware Water Gap — Annual Benjamin Franklin memorial service will be held here Sunday at Presbyterian Church of the Mountain. All Monroe County firemen are invited.

Fire company members will meet at the firehouse at 10:30 a.m. Rev. Luther Markin will give the sermon.

The services are held alternately in Stroudsburg, Delaware Water Gap and East Stroudsburg. Firemen from Stroud Township, Shawnee, Marshalls Creek and other points also take part in the annual services.

Polio Chapter To Map Final Drive Plans

The first major meeting of the Monroe polio chapter since the March of Dimes campaign started will be held Thursday at the Penn-Stroud Hotel.

It will be a joint meeting of the executive board and the campaign committee, at 8 p.m. in the hotel ballroom, use of which is being donated by G. P. O'Neill.

The volunteers, along with workers and local-level officials, will plan activities for the last half of the campaign.

Lancaster Cattle

Lancaster, G.P. — Cattle 963, yards had good clearance Monday. Few new arrivals held over for yesterday, closing prices steady with the early advance. Calves 241, light receipts, market active on all grades. Hogs 386, receipts light, prices generally 15-100 lower. Sheep 24, few lambs on market, selling strong on all grades.

Family Breaks Bones

Marion, Ind. (AP) — It's four down and one to go for the P. R. Karnes family. First Mrs. Karnes broke her right foot, Ronnie, 7, cracked his left ankle. The father broke a rib, and then Nicky, 14, fractured his right elbow. Tony, 2, is still fractureless.

Methodist Men Plan Deer Dinner

The outstanding event of the fellowship year of the East Stroudsburg Methodist Men's Fellowship will take place on Tuesday, Jan. 19 at 6:30 p.m. in the form of a venison dinner. The committee in charge of arrangements anticipates an attendance of more than 200 men.

The program will include colored movies by the game commission with the representatives of the local game wardens in attendance. John Doebeling will conduct a question and answer "quiz" after the major part of the program has taken place.

Robert Haime, humorist from Wyoming, Pa., who has been described as the "Eddie Cantor" of the Eastern U. S., will speak briefly. William Hynekiew, accordion player, of Wilkes-Barre, will play. Invitations to attend have been extended to a number of persons, and members of the Fellowship are urged to take their sons.
